INFORMATION WANTED

On June 26, 1984, the remains of an unidentified female were found near Avenue J and 255th Street in Lancaster, California. The victim was estimated to be between 20 and 28 years of age, and she was deceased for approximately 7-10 days prior to discovery. She had a heavy build and medium length brown hair. She wore a white long-sleeve sweatshirt with a collar and a "Jones" label, blue Levi jeans, black ankle-length boots, brown socks, a men's black and white T-shirt, a white lace "Accentuate" brand bra, and a belt with a Harley-Davidson belt buckle.

The victim also wore a necklace with a horse or unicorn pendant (shown) and there was a yellow metal chain with a Catholic medallion found in her right rear pocket (shown). The victim was known to associate with Harley-Davidson motorcycle riders. She may have used the nickname "Gypsy" and worked at the "Tennessee Bar" in Culver City, California prior to her death.
